

Introducing our Board of African Women Leaders

DR. MAGGIE KIGOZI (UGANDA)

Dr. Maggie Kigozi is a medical doctor by profession, a business consultant, a farmer and an avid motorcycle rider! She brings to the Chairperson position over 20 years leadership experience at the helm of Crown Beverages Uganda and Uganda Investment Authority. Dr. Maggie is a celebrated trailblazer for women and girls in Uganda in the advancement of their social justice and provides mentorship and support for young women leaders in entrepreneurship, climate change, scouting and sportswoman-ship. She is currently a member of Uganda's National Dialogue Process.

CLAIRE MATHONSI (ZIMBABWE)

Claire Mathonsi is currently the Deputy Executive Director at the Advocacy Accelerator, where she focuses on advocacy capacity strengthening to support locally driven advocacy agendas to ensure durable and sustainable change in Africa. Her particular focus is on feminist advocacy capacity strengthening. Claire brings extensive experience in women's rights and gender equality in a global context with strengths in feminist transformation and integration for development. Claire works to see a feminist world where the transformation agenda for African women in all their diversity is set by African women in all their diversity. She is also focused on the recognition of African Women's diverse voices in global and sub regional policy processes not as recipients and subjects of development agendas but as drivers and knowledge creators of their own solutions for feminist societies. Her passions include sustainable domestic funding of improving the quality and status of life of women and girls in all their diversity and bringing a feminist lens to narratives of development and neo capitalism. She joins the board as the Vice Chairperson and represents Southern Africa.

She is passionate about equipping individuals with strong skills for oration, presentation and media appearances. She represents the East African region.

MMABATHO MOTSAMAI

(GABORONE/BOTSWANA)

Mmabatho Motsamai is a believer in African development through leadership, community engagement and the power of pen. Her work in developmental issues lies in citizen blogging, human rights rapporteuring, facilitating conversations, moderating discussions and providing leadership on projects. Mmabatho is the founding editor of The Afrolutionist, a blog that stimulates dialogue on holistic, inclusive African development through a human rights lens. She is the cofounder of the Botswana Youth Jobs Fair, an annual fair that stimulates real time job readiness training and employment activity through multi-stakeholder engagement. She was previously a key correspondent for the Positive Vibes KPReach program, documenting the lives of key populations in Southern Africa. She represents key populations.

RAINATOU SOW (GUINEA)

Rainatou Sow is the founder and Executive Director at Make Every Woman Count, a young African woman led organisation based in UK. Since the age of 12, she has been working and advocating to promote African women and girls' rights and continues to be a resilient campaigner for a peaceful and equitable world. Rainatou envisages a future where young African women are leaders in their own rights able to speak out about issues that concern them. She believes that Africa's challenges will not be effectively addressed unless the exclusion faced by women and girls is tackled across the board so that they can fully participate in the economic, political & social development of the continent. Rainatou was awarded as the "Most Inspirational Woman of the Year 2012" by Women4Africa. She represents West Africa
